"Economic Impact of Bear Viewing and Bear Hunting in the Great Bear Rainforest of British Columbia"

January 7th, 2014: The Center for Responsible Travel examined the economic impacts of two outdoor recreational activities in the magnificent Great Bear Rainforest in coastal British Columbia: bear hunting and bear viewing. This study is the first to compare the economic value of these two sectors, and comes in the midst of public controversy over trophy bear hunting. The study generated considerable media coverage, a portion of which can be viewed here:
